

What people are saying about ¡Salud!

"I salute ¡Salud! for teaching us how much we can learn not just about - but from - Cuba."

Julian Bond, Board Chairman, NAACP
(National Association for the Advancement of Colored People)

"¡Salud! is an excellent, accurate and deeply moving portrayal of a healthcare system designed to keep people healthy rather than the 'sickcare' system that currently exists in the United States." Dr. Jocelyn Elders, former U.S. Surgeon General

"¡Salud! is compelling, upbeat and moving, a great tool for learning." Dr. Paul Farmer, Partners in Health and Harvard University Medical School

"¡Salud! should be required viewing for all medical students." Jay Bhatt, President, American Medical Students Association

¡Salud!

What puts Cuba on the map in the quest for global health...

A timely film about the competing values that mark the battle for global health... Beautifully filmed in Cuba, South Africa, The Gambia, Honduras and Venezuela, ¡Salud! suggests bold new approaches to the development of the human resources that are critical for making health care a global birthright. The film examines the remarkable case of Cuba, a cash-strapped country with what the BBC calls "one of the world's best health systems," and explores Cuba's extensive global health initiatives. ¡Salud! accompanies some of the 28,000 Cuban health professionals now staffing public health systems in over 60 countries. Their stories, and those of approximately 30,000 young medical students from the Americas, Africa and Asia who are currently studying in Cuba, challenge us to rethink the potential for international health cooperation.

Directed and produced by Academy Award nominee Connie Field (The Life and Times of Rosie the Riveter, Freedom on My Mind); Gail Reed, co-producer.
